EXPLANATORY NOTES

This bill amends the Code of Civil Procedure so as to relax the 180-day time limit imposed on the parties for scheduling the hearing of a case or inscribing a case. It provides that they may present a request to the court for an extension of the peremptory time limit sooner during the preliminary stage of a proceeding, and not just in the 30 days before the time limit expires.

In family matters, the bill extends the 180-day time limit to one year from service of the motion to institute proceedings.

LEGISLATION AMENDED BY THIS BILL :

- Code of Civil Procedure (R.S.Q., chapter C-25);
- Act to reform the Code of Civil Procedure (2002, chapter 7).
